Don't Leave the Farm.

Come, boys, I have something to tell you,
Come near, I would whisper it low,
You are thinking of leaving the homestead
Don't be in a hurry to go!

. How soon the course downward begins.

You talk of the wines of the Black Hills,

But ah! there is gold on the farm, boys, The mercantile trade is a hazard,
The goods are first high and then low

Better stick to the farm a while longer, Don't be in a hurry to go.

The great busy West has inducements, And so has the busiest mart, But wealth wasn't made in a day, boys,

Don't be in a hurry to start.
The capters and beokers are wealthy,

They take in their million or so,
Ah, think of the fraud and deception
Deal be in a barry to go.

The farm is the safest and surest, The orchards are loaded to-day, You're free as the air of the mountain And "monarch of all you survey." Botter stay on the farm a while longer,

Though profits come in rather slow.

Remember you've nothing to risk, boys, Don't be in a hearry to go!

"Oh, John, how cruel you were to send me away! I'il never leave you again, darling."

When they had both regained calmuss, John (Iraham explained to his wife that the next day the house was to be sold—he could not take her into lodgings—perhaps she had better return to her mother. But Margaret firmly refessed.

"Any place that is good enough for you, John, is good enough for me. My place is with you. I can assist you more than you think," she said.

Then Margaret commenced the battle of life in earnest. It is not easy to turn from a life of pleasure and luxury to one of comparative poverty. Margaret at first did not find her path strewn with sies; there were difficulties to be encountered; slights to be endured; ease to be specified; but she had a brave heart, and love had changed the gay, careless girl into the tender, self-sacrificing woman. Margaret's Mission.

"Ames Gray says that every women has a mission. What do you suppose my mission is manna!"

"Mission, indeed," laughed Mrs. Alleyne, looking proudly at her pretty daughter; "I suspect, my dear Meggy, your mission is to flirt and dance."

Mrs. Alleyne was wealthy, and Marguet was ar only child. Her whole life was spent in rendering her daughter happy, so Margaret was petted to her heart's content. To look as pretty and bewitching as possible, to be arrayed like Solomon in all his glory from morning till night, to pass her time in an endless, succession of gayety, was her child's mission, according to Mrs. Alleyne's idea; so Margaret received all the gifts fortune showered upon her as a matter of course, and enjoyed life as her mother expected she would do.

At lest Margaret met her fate, to the great would man of her friends, in the There are ladies in every community There are ladies in every community who possess to a greater or less degree the gift of a Worth with respect to their own attire, and to some extent with respect to that of others. A few days ago the Cleveland Leader

A few days ago the Cleveland Leader gave in a special telegram from Sandusky the substance of an account given by a man who had found in Ceylon Mr. Harlow Case, collector of the port of Sandusky in 1850, who defaulted and run away with the wife of his deputy. The paper completes the story, giving the full narrative of the traveler, who found the guilty pair living in affluent style in Ceylon. He visited their house, and, after a fine dinner, the following took place:

"Sir," said he, in tones which I shall never forget, "if I have suffered; and if in F.'s bereavement he has cursed me, that curse is fearfully fulfilled. Poor Mary is dying—has been dying for months, and I have known it. It has been for me to see the failing step—the dimming eye; it is for me now to see the terrible struggles of her nearly wornout frame; it is for me to listen to her language of remorse that sometimes almost drives me mad. Yes, mad, mad!" he said, in a frenzy, rising and crossing the floor with long, hasty strides. Then burying his face in his hands, he exclaimed: "Too late! too late! I have repented!" There was a long pause, and he continued, calmly: "No human means can now restore my poor companion. Her noral sensibilities become means can now restore my poor com-panion. Her moral sensibilities become ore and more acute as she fails in strength, so that she reproaches herself constantly." A weary, mournful sigh broke from his lips as if his heart would break. "Oh, if he knew!" he exclaimed again, "if he knew how bitter a penalty she is paying for the outrage she had she is paying for the outrage she had committed upon him, he would pity her —and, if it could be, forgive. Will you see her, sir?"

I shrunk from the very thought. "She has asked for you, sir; do not deny her request. Hearing that you came from America, she entreated me to bring you to her. I promised that I would."

would."

"I will go, then."

Up the cool, wide, matted stairs he led me, into a chamber oriental in its furnishing and chaste in its magnificence. There, half-reclining in a wide easy chair, a costly shawl of lace cast over her attenuated shoulders, the rich dressing convolutioning and hall at the state of the cost o

He will undoubtedly pass out of the public mind, in a day or so, to that merited oblivion which he deserves. But his temporary notoriety gives one the opportunity of marrating the career of a most remarkable personage, so far as it has fallen within my own observation.

I first knew of Mr. Bell about the close of the war. I think it was in the fall of 1864, when he was pointed out to me in the Gilmore House in Baltimore. The day before he had been arrested as a Confederate spy, on West Baltimore St., amid a great deal of excitement, and if I recollect aright, with a strong attempt to resolution.

He wa from the presence not only a free man, but with a pass and permit to pass thro any lines within the Department, and special immunity from any interference. Perhaps, and probably, this circumstance would have passed my remembrance. among the thousand and one incidents of a busy and exciting period, were it not recalled by the publication some few years later, on the last page of the New York Ledger, of a series of sketches narrating the adventures of the celebrated scout and spy, C. S. Bell. Many of your readers will remember these sketches of deeds of daring, and hair-breath adventhere and miraculous escapes, one of whom they must have imagined to have been the soul of honor and the hero of a thous-

the soul of honor and the hero of a thousand victories.

It was, however, in the spring of 1869, on the frontiers of Texas, that my acquaintance with the gentleman became personal. Bell was one of several detectives brought to Texas, by the splendid offer of rewards for the capture of murderers and desperadoes, who were overrunning the state, multiplying their crimes and defying justice or arrest. In this busithe state, multiplying their crimes and defying justice or arrest. In this busi-ness Bell was remarkably successful; he made many arrests that the civil author-ities had given up as impossible, and in several instances followed his man to his own haunts, and took him from the midst of his friends and desperate allies. I re-member of his arresting a murderer charged with several counts, in a bar-room at Webberville, a little hamlet some twen ty miles from Austin, and haunted by waere he turned him over to the authori ties and obtained the reward.

One of the foulest and most dastardly murders known to the criminal annals, was the assasination of Major Thompson, of the 4th Cavalry, near Ft. Texas, in the fall of 1869. The stances attending the murder are too long for parration here; the murderers, howil officer seldom ventured and the militry only under strong escorts. A large reward had been offered by the state authorities for the arrest of any or all of the gang; the War department had authorized a reward of a thousand dollars, which had been still further supplemented by a similar reward by the officers of the Regiment. Various detectives had worked up the case and reached the conclusion that the Taylor boys were the murderers, but when it came to making murderers, but when it came to making or undertaking the arrest, their hearts had failed them, and the gang made reck less by their continued success in crime, committed still further depredations, and for a year or two held the authorities at defiance. In 1870, while on another expedition, Bell had struck the trail of the "Taylor gang," and recklessly deter-mined to bring them in, or bring his own unusually daugerous occupation to an end in the attempt. The chase was a stern in the attempt. The chase was a stern chase, and consequently a long one: through a dense chapparel where man seldom visited, and only frequented by outlaws and despetadoes, who feared therein neither God nor man. The pursuit of "Doughboy" Taylor ended in a fight between himself and Bell, wherein a bullet from the latter put an end to his a bullet from the latter put an end to his a bullet from the latter put an end to his existence. Spencer was arrested at the house of a friend, while in bed in the early morning, and before he had time to reach his shot-gun, which stood by his bed-side, and was brought into San Antonio by Bell, alone and unaided. Returning to the pursuit of Hays Taylor, he chased him for several days and nights and tracked him at last to a huge stretch a bullet from the latter put an end to his

TEMPERANCE RALLY .-- A public Temperance meeting will be held in the Lecure room of the Union Church, at the Landing, on the afternoon of Fast Day, beginning at half past two o'clock.

This is to be a union meeting, all of into it. The friends of temperance, all who can, will be there of course; and a cordial invitation is extended to those who have never identified themselves with the cause, to come in and see if they cannot be persuaded to do so now.

Delegations are expected from the Reform Clubs of South Weymouth, and Braintree, and perhaps from Quincy, and all the various Temperance organizations of this vicinity, will please accept this as an invitation to be present.

There will be no long speeches, but short, earnest talks from those who know the evils of which they speak, and who have the good of their fellows at heart; and let us see if the grand movement which has blessed thousands in other places will not reach and bless us also.

QUINCY, April 3, 1876. Bell visited the place in disguise, strolled into the barroom about noon-day and found his man surrounded by some thirty or more of his friends, and the whole party "dighting manly, but other than that no fair minded drunk." Nothing daunted, however, he made the arrest, and with a londed revolver in either hand drove his prisoner before him, kept the crowd at bay, tied him otherwise than very orderly and quiet, and unprejudiced person present will say that the conduct of the Quincy boys was on a horse, mounted his own, and smid a Shower of bullets, several of which wounded his prisoner, made his way to Austin. at a free dance a few evenings previous, the Reform Club had exclusive control o that article as an emblem of reformation.

Another thing I have found, the great mass of parents are over ambitious to have their children promoted to classes beyond their capacity, and the progress of the class to be conformed with their ability. Ten children are injured in health, by keeping late hours, the religious societies entering heartily where one over studies. It is not so very singular a thing that parents may not after 20 years of absence from school be able to solve problems that are reas onable ones for their children, and be cause unable should not blame the school

ARTICLES OF THE OLDEN TIMES .-This being Centennial Year there will be no doubt great effort made in all parts of 24 AND 25 DOCK SQUARE, our country, to collect and bring together in different localities ancient articles to gratify the curiosity, and foster the habit of preserving old articles that are Office. Boston Post Building. often destroyed as useless. There are many houses in Braintree where relics of antiquity could be found. They consist of articles of furniture, wearing apparel, artificers tools, implements of agriculture, books, gold, silver and copper coins, and others too numerous to mention. It would be a rich treat to visit the garrets of the old houses, and bring out to light these dusty relics, that the present generation may have opportunity to see what their fathers and mothers used one hundred years ago .-In some houses are hanging maps and pictures of ancient state which would be looked upon with great interest by people of the present day. In a dwelling house near Hayward's Creek, can be seen an old map representing the plan of a battle fought near Lake George, in 1755, between the English and Provincial troops under command of Sir William Johnson, and the French and Indians under command of the Baron Deskau. Another relic may be seen in a house on Commercial Street, in form of a cast iron chimney back, bearing date Citizens Market, 1607. If the town vote favorably at the adjourned town meeting in April, in regard to celebrating the Fourth of July next, in a way suited to the great events SUPPLY PIC-NICS & PARTIES of the past century, as we trust they will, and make a liberal appropriation therefor, a committee will be chosen to visit all persons having ancient and rare relics to bring to the Town House, that they may be exhibited on that day. E. LECTURE.-Agreeable to announcement, Asa T. Pratt, Esq., delivered a Meats and Vegetables, also Oysters, Pastry lecture on Wednesday evening, last week. in the Hall of the Union Engine House, under the auspices of the Company. E. A. Newton, Esq., introduced the lecturer, and doing so made a few very intelligent and pertinent remarks, intended for the special benefit of the members of the sompany, particularly in determining the character of their amusements, making them more rational, and in this way showing that their brains were in their heads. and not in their heels, and he complimented them in giving the present lecture, which he hoped was only one of a series, and would thus prove in the history of the company the beginning of a new de-The subject of Mr. Pratt's lecture was

The Institution has a up to the present time.

But this compendium gives but a very imperfect idea of the lecture; as a whole it gave unmistakable evidence of a most thorough knowledge of the subject on the part of the lecturer. It abounded in grotesque, yet apt and striking contrasts, from "Mother Eve" in the Garden of Eden, to the "reigning belle" in Washington, from the Pentateuch to Blackstone's Commentaries, from Milton to DeTocqueville, from the King and his Professor to the Carrrier and his Jackass, from Cain and Abel to the fatherless "bairn" out west. We have in this method the truth of a principle presented in the form of an ellipsis. Mr. Pratt clearly analyzed and explained the causes which created and shaped our national polity, and in doing so fell into no palpable and manifest errors, and it could hardly be expected that he should so far free himself from countries and countries room desks FEOPLE'S MARKET the trammels of party bias as to maintain the tone of an impartial but sympathetic narration, yet he succeeded in doing so, which proves him to be in the possession of the "historical consci- in the best manner. ousness" to a certain extent. Respectfully dedicated to Mr. & Mrs. W. W. Hunt There's a dear little form lying silent and cold.
With white folded hands on her motionless breast Like a beautiful rosebud dropped from its stem,
She faded away and sank to her rest. Too frail and too pure for this cold world of ours, The good Shepherd took her, and bore her away To soff, fairer skies, and bright blooming bowers, Where forever 'tis bright and becateous as May. Oh, mourn not, fond mother, thy darling is safe. Is safe in the arms of her dear Savior now; She is free from all sorrow, temptation and sin, And a halo of beauty encircles her brow.

ommissioner's Notice. To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners for the County of Norfolk.

THE undersigned, residents and non-residents of Cohasset, in said County, and residents of South Scituate. Scituate and Hull, in the County of Plymouth, respectfully represent that the public convenience and necessity require that a new road be venience and necessity require that a new road be taid out and constructed, commencing on the northerest side of North Main street, nearly opposite the sortherly end of King street, in said Cohasset, thence running northwesterly and northeasterly courses over land of James McCormick and Lincola J. Pratt and others to Jerusalem street, at stake near and between the dwelling houses of Washington Brown and Ivory Bean, so that said road will connect with street near and west of Black Rock House, in Cohasset.

Your petitioners would therefore ask your Honors to view the premises above described, and locate and construct said road from the northerly end of King street to Jerusalem street, according to the law in such case made and provided.

LETTER FROM WASHINGTON. Investigation vs. Usurpation.
Washington, April 9, 1876.

Washington, April 9, 1876.

The ex-Confederate House has busied itself during the past fortuight in the process of investigating everybody and everything, and on the slightest pretence witnesses have been summoned from all quarters of the Union, to attend before a Committee and testify to something of which they may have heard some one else speak at some indistinct period in the past. Mr. Clymer's Committee, with a persistency that is truly refreshing, is still after the Post Traders, but small success has attended their efforts. It has been customary for persons who charge others with crime, or fraud, to prove their charge, or suffer the penalties of their falsehoods. But in these days and in the ex-Confederate House, it has be their falsehoods. But in these days and in the ex-Confederate House, it has be come the rule for parties charged with crime on absolutely no evidence beyond the ex-parte statement of a personal enemy, to prove their innocence or suffer the persecution of the House. The action of the Democracy in the House, is simply disgraceful and scandalous to the country. As insignificant little country-lawyer, from an obscure little District in Misdouri, whose nose is dissatisfied unless it is stuck into somebody else's business, has been smelling around until Missouri, whose nose is dissatisfied unless it is stuck into somebody else's business, has been smelling around until he imagines that he has discovered the biggest kind of a scandal in what he is pleased to call the "Real-estate pool." A firm of gentlemen in this city, who for several years having been doing a real-estate business, under the name and style of Kilbourne & Latta, were pounced upon by the little attorney, whose ideas were something like these: Kilbourne & Latta were to be summoned before the committee and interrogated as to whether any officials in high station were interested in their real-estate operations, and the extent of their interest.—These gentlemen were further to be required to lay before the committee all their private books and papers, and allow the said committee to examine them at their leisure. The attorney was to have unlimited leisure to poke his attenuat diproboscis into all the pigeon-holes and private drawers and safes of the said K. & L., with the understanding that he was to discover enough maierial to form the biggest kind of a Democratic Campaign document. The first part of the plan worked admirably. Mr. Hallet ney's little plan has miscarried, for the books and papers he cannot get. Mr. Kilbourne claims protection under the fourth amendment to he Constitution of the United States, which of course has no weight with the attorney or his friends of the ex-Confederate House, and for refusing to submit his private books and papers to the inspection of the artorney's committee.

Mr. J. M. Johnston. Dear Sir: The Universal Bath Tub I bought of you I used last evening, and ound it to answer the recommendations fully. I much prefer it to any form of Bath I have ever seen. The small quantity of water necessary, and its portable form makes it very convenient for use in any part of the house, and the bather will find it pleasanter in use. I think than the ordinary fixed bath.—My wife says she considers the house enlarged by the amount of a bath room.

According to Professor Caldwell's experiments barnyard manure yields the most corn; plaster and potash salts the next best results; guano no marked difference with soil unfertilized, and fish scraps but a meager production.

Which is most successfully transplanted, the maple or the ulm?

The first mentioned is most likely to live, but with care either will thrive. In transplanting be sure and obtain saplings having a mass of fine fibrous roots; when ready to plant dip these roots in mud about as thick as cream, and then plant with each root lying in its natural

The New York Times has been interviewing a professional rat catcher, and the following is the result of its investigations:

Taking a stout canvas bag from under the table, he produced an ordinary pair of tongs. "This," said Toner, "i what I catch the m with. You see I have the inside of the end of these tongs made like a rasp. Now, there's another improvement of mine. If you have an ordinary pair of tongs, and grab a stout rat by the tail, he'll wiggle away, but if ye catch him with these, he's bound to go in the hole."

"How do you charge for your services?"

"Well, me and my assistant gets $5 each every night we work and our board. And when we work in private houses we sometimes charge $15 for every hundred rats we catch."

"What do you do with the rats?"

"Sell them, of course. Merchants and brokers has fancy terriers they want to train to kill rats, and if there's a rating match comes off we furnish the rats. Good rats is worth $20 a hundred."

"I suppose you have a considerable number of customers?"

"Oh, nearly all the big hotels, breweries, saloons, and slaughter houses in the State. You see, traps and poison can't drive them out. Rats breed so fast that you can't catch them quick enough, and if you poison them why they die in their holes."

"Well, how do you catch them?"

"I go into the cellar, or wherever the rats are, with John. He holds the bag and I take the dark lantern and the tongs. We have rubbers on and step light. The rats run around and I

When there's no more, I go out and leave the place be for a couple of hours, or nother day, and then I go at them again. But the day the light specific is the same of the s and then I go at them again. But the best way to know is to see me work. Me and John is going to clean out a hotel to-night, and if you come along you can take a hand in. I'll leave here at twelve o'clock." The reporter accepted the proposition and on return the proposition and there is not a nail in the proposition and the propositio cepted the proposition, and on return-ing at midnight, found Toner and his ing at midnight, found Toner and his partner in waiting. Cassidy carried the bag and tools, and jumping on a car, the party were soon conveyed to their destination, a prominent hotel. The night clerk, on being informed by Toner of his business, ordered him to be shown to the servants' hall, where the head waiter, a couple of cooks, and of several ratting matches he had seen at Jimmy Shaw's, in Windmill street, near the Haymarket, and Toner gravely assented to the statement that Jimmy Shaw's Jacko was the best ratter ever put into a pit. Toner next asked for the key of the kitchen. This having been given him, he opened the closets and store-room doors, and sprinkling a few spoonfuls of odorous fluid in the center of the kitchen he retired, locking

LETTER FROM WASHINGTON. Notes in and out of Congress.

WASHINGTON. APRIL 16, 1876. Easter opens in a most charming morning above and beneath, but with justing above and beneath, but with justing above and consequent dust to render a display of spring suits a question of damages. Easter is a day of release to the majority of Washington fashionables for a devotion to the rules and dictates of mother-church is quite as much a matter. for a devotion to the rules and dictates of mother-church is quite as much a matter of duty, without regard to profession, as the rules and customs of etiquette. Our churches, with their Easter decorations, in connection with the always excellen music on Easter Sunday, are certain attractions for the masses in Washington is well as in other less favored localities and enable our streets to present an attractive appearance on this day of all others.

Inc past week has been a week of coincidences, which the mathematically dis ine past week has been a week of co-incidences, which the mathematically di-posed inform us would not occur again for a long period. Good Friday, which occurred this year on the 14th of April. has not occurred on that date since 1865 on which occasion President Lincoln, while attending at Ford's Theatre a rep-resentation of "Our American Cousin," met his fate at the hands of an assassin. S rangely enough, on the evening of Good Friday, the 14th of April, 1876, Ford Theatre again witnessed a representation of "Our American Cousin," by no proconceived arrangement, but as a mer matter of chance. The superstitions inclined are of course to sating for one disasters, and will be samy disappoints unless they follow. GENERAL SHERMAN.

The return of Army recaquatters to Washington is variously commented upon. When the removal to St. Louis was effected, the particular reason given was that the bulk of the Army being west of the Mississippi, the General Commanding should be as near in its midst as possible. Even St. Louis was questioned as being not applied and for wast and Omash. being not sufficiently far west, and Omsh. was seriously talked of as the proper was seriously talked of as the proper point for Army Headquarters. General Sherman further claimed the utter impossibility of maintaining his proper station, socially and officially, on the Salary pertaining to his rank, so long as he remained in Washington, and his action in removing himself and family from the maelstroon of fashionable society seemed the commendable course of a prudent and stroon of rashionanic society seemed that commendable course of a prudent and sagacious pater-familias. But experience seems to have determined that the red tape process inseparable from the Army by which all orders and papers passing the Army, is both expensive and unneces-sary, particularly so when time and dis-tance are considered, to the evident disadvantage of the service. But beyond this, the fact of long and intimate ac-quaintance between the new Secretary of War and the Gen. of the Army, is suffi-cient reason why the former should dethe latter, for consultation and advice in matters pertaining to the army. But whatever the reason, the presence of Army Headquist of which time of peace, is a fait accompit of which we shall be the gainers.

SECRETARY TAFT.

The new Secretary of War, though hardly warm in his seat, is said by those who have the best opportunities for observation, to be winning golden opinions as to his ability for the arduous position to which he has been called. A quiet and dering sound decisions on the momentare only required after long and difficult experience, and can be seldom expected in a new incumbent. But the wisdom of President's choice Seems more that the President's choice seems more than established in bringing to so responsible a position a gentieman of so established a reputation as Judge Tark. In person the new Secretary is not unlike the Jatz President Lincoln, of meagre, spare form, and the resemblance is so marked as to be a supplied to the second content of the person of the matter of common observation.-With no means of stating definitely, is should imagine him to be not far from sevelty, though remarkably well preserved for a person of that age.

HALLET KILBOURNE.

The recusant witness in the "Real E-tate Pool' is still in contempt of th Committee and the House, as are the ma jority of the sensible population of the country at large. A writ of habeas corp is was issued by the District Court, made was issued by the District Court, made-returnable on Saturday, with a view to taking Mr. Kilbourne from the hands of the House, but has been postponed to Tuesday next. In the mean time the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House, under its order, remains in contempt of the Court, unless the body is produced on Tuesday, in which case the said officer will accompany the Marshal of the Court. will accompany the Marshal of the Courto the jail, under its commitment, and have an opportunity to know how it ishimself. The idea seems to be to bring the case before the Supreme Court of the United States, that the question of jurisinformation as the Committee claim, and it is quite as evident that the other genplenty of substantial information, which may be of use to the Committee. But this information will implicate several promin a Democrats, and is not desiro the Committee. It is clearly ev den that these investigations -for House is doing nothing else at present nor has for the past fortnight—are for political ends, and for the purpose o manufacturing political capital for the coming campaign.

THE PROSPECT.

There seems an evident intention to prolong these investigations, and conse-quently the session far into the campaign, with a view of sending out developments. from time to time, that shall induced the said campaign; and unless the Sen-ate com; els an adjournment by its own-action, the plan will be carried out.— There is already a dead lock between the two Houses, on the appropriation bills, and it is believed that this local upon crippling the Government, which the Democrats will have no hesitation in doing, if the opportunity offers. The ex Confederates are particularly joyous, in that they are running the South wing of the Capitol about as they choose. But few Union men remain as officers or em-ployees of the House, in any capacity.— It only requires a Democratic victory in November to place what remains of the Union in the hands of its greatest ene-Union in the hands or its greatest ene-mies. The ensuing struggle will be a struggle for life or death with the late Confederacy, and its political prospects at the present time are by no means hopeless. A strong and united action all along the Democratic line, North and South, and the "Lost Cause," which is now slumbering, will be quitely and bloodlessly triumphant.

> ROTTERDAM, HOLLAND, March 9, 1876. . . A part of our passage across the Atlantic was very boisterous; on the 2d of February we had a hurricane which lasted two days, and was perfectly terrible, the sea being one sheet of foam. The rudder was broken by the force of the sea, so that our ship was for three days at the mercy of the waves, until the rudder could be repaired.

East Weymouth, and South Braintree:

Last week we visited the Hague, where the King, William II. and his queen, Sophia, reside. They do not live together, the queen having her own palace and the king his. He is a jolly, good natured man, excessively fond of beer and also of the women. He brought one or two women to live in his palace when his queen was living with him, so she thought it was time to leave, and retired to her own palace, about two miles distant from that 24 AND 25 DOCK SQUARE, of the King. On state occasions she rides in her own carriage, and has her own body guard.

As we entered the queen's palace by a side door, we were struck by the beauty of the hallway, which was finished in oak, beautifully carved, and the walls were hung with ancient paintings of battles, while the floors are of white marble. We were ushered into a room called the Chinese room, where the queen receives her Chinese guests. The furniture consists of presents from distinguished peosists of presents from distinguished peo-ple in China, and they are of the most GPOCOPICS and ProvisionS exquisite needlework, as is also the carpet. The walls are hung with cloth, the figures on it being of needlework, done

Next we passed on to the Japanese room, which is furnished with presents from Japan. There was a large Japanese divan in the centre of the room, for the queen to recline on, a la Japan.

Next we passed on to the queen's sit ting-room. This room was furnished with ancient furniture that had been used by ancestors of the royal family, all very elaborate and well preserved. The walls were hung with old paintings of the kings and queens long ago returned to the dust. One remarkably attractive painting was that of the present king's grandfather when he was a little baby, but among all the paintings there was none of the king. We next passed into her sleeping apartment, which is a privilege very few visitors obtain; but the lady in-waiting said as we were Americans she would allow us to go in. All of the furniture in this room was very elaborate, with the exception of the bedstead, which was very plain and old fashioned. The most beautiful of all the rooms is the ball-room, which is circular, with an alcove. The walls were covered with the choicest oil paintings, most of them by

In this room we were handed a book and requested to record our names, so that the queen might know who had visited her during her absence in France.

From this room we were ushered into a very large vestibule, with massive doors, which is the queen's entrance. We took a look at the dining room, which is furnished with a dome, and is very elaborate with pictures and mirrors. The boufet is a semi-circle, having on one side a set of china from Japan, on the other one of Dutch manufacture; also many ancient dishes used by the old kings. I sat in the queen's chair at her dining table. where at her right sits her son, the Prince of Orange, on the left Prince Alexander. and eight other chairs for guests.

From the palace we drove to the Representatives Hall, which is a very fine room, the paintings in the dome representing all nations-America being represented by Columbus and the Indians.

From this place we drove to the palace of the king, but time will not permit me to give a description of this, and his majesty was not to be seen that day. The gardens around the palace are full of the most exquisite flowers.

From here we went to a fashionable watering-place called Chevenieure, on the North Sea. The dress of the women at this place is very peculiar; short dress, a cape and a headdress almost indescribable, made of brass or gold, to fit the head, with a hole on the top and a place for the face. They never change their style of dress, adhering to the customs of their

EVERYWHERE ADMITTED TO POSSESS THE PINEST QUALITY OF MUSICAL TONE.

During the last two years nearly every style has been changed, some by the addition of new stops and of registers with new and striking qualities of tone.

The old forms of cases, with the exception of those of the large pedal organs, have given way to those or newer designs, more in accordance with the prevailing modern taste.

By the improvements in the made of manufacture, the cases are the most solidly built and the most perfectly finished specimens of cabinet work now to be seen.

Entirely new styles have been introduced, such as Nos. 6, 7, 17, 18, 19, 20, and 21, finished in tasteful panels of motified walnut, or of jet and gilt. These instruments are at once the best and handsomest in themselve.

PAYMENT BY INSTALMENTS. Those desiring time can make mouthly or quarterly payments. And to those who hire, this great indonent is offered, namely, that if at the end of a year they wish to buy, the rent shall be counted as so much pe Issuards the price.

Those whe wish to go direct to the wareroom of the manufacturers for the apportunity of selecting from larger number can do so and have the same terms as though they dealt directly with the subscriber.

LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

Opening Scenes in the Belknap Impeach WASHINGTON, APRIL 23, 1876.

Monday, the 17th instant, witnessed the opening of the Belknap Impeachment in the Senate—one of those rare occurrences of which this is but the third in our history—the last being that of the late President Johnaon, with the incidents and results of which the majority of us are familiar, and the first that of Judge Chase, away back in the early days when Aaron Burr, dignified and courteous, presided over the High Court of Impeachment as Vice President of the United States. The day of the opening of the present trial was Easter Monday, and the terraces and grounds of the Capitol were thronged with thousands, I was about to say myriads of laughing, frolicking children, enjoying the local holiday, rolling their tiny, stained Easter-eggs down the local and the State and one by one the actors in the drama withdraw; the Senate, as a Court Takes of the State on the same of medical following in their wakes. dignified Senators, and almost overturned in their haste the solemn old black-birds in their haste the solemn old black-birds who roost in the Chambers of the Supreme Court. They filled the stairways and the upper gallery, surged up the dome to the utmost limit, and if not restrained by the fear of the law, would have climbed to the shoulders of the bronze goddess on the summit, and from these rained down a shower of Easterness on the unsuspecting passers below. thence rained down a shower of Eastereggs on the unsuspecting passers below.
One almost sighed for the Pied Piper of nursery popularity, or imagined the Capitol, with its stately dome, but a huge were crowded to repletion; comfort was possible to but few, and suffocation to the many but a question of time. The floor was moderately filled to begin with, and when later, the House en masse filed inwhen later, the House in masse filed to the space in the rear of the Senatorial desk, the crush may be said to have been perfect. From our elevation we look down upon the field of action and wonder why the sovereign states select the baldest through the long sermon, by count-ing the shining pates in the pews beneath us, and on special occasions leveled thereat a paper wad, when assured the sexton was out of sight. We feel as though a fusilade of paper wads can alone justice to this situation. But we catch the glimpse of a severe frown on the high brow of Senator Burnside, as though he had detected us in our heresy, and feel condemned in our inmost thoughts. Sen-ator Hamlin, with black swallow-tails and appears to be winding in the further at some one or something in the further gallery. We wonder if those ambrosial white locks will ever wave over the House. Mr. Morton, unusually grave, leans thoughtfully on his desk and sur-

He is withal, an excellent presiding officer, disposes of the business without the least hesitation, and gives one the impression that he is perfectly at home in the Chair. A stir about the doorway, and a moving of chairs and a hurrying of pages. The Senators turn their heads around as though they were in church and a strange step was coming down the aisle. Mr.

They stood closely packed in every hall-way, swayed and pushed through the Rotanda, ran between the legs of dignified Senators, and almost overturned grasp his hand. The Senators are impassive, and none by word or glance reach forward the least sign of sympathy. Mr. Conkling converses long and earnestly with Mr. Carpenter, but not even glances toward Belknap. We think we detect a smile on the face of the latter, as Mr. Hoar greets him, but the huge beard and the reddened eyes disguise the expression, and setting his hat firmly on his head the doors close noiselessly on his head the doors close noiselessly behind him. In the early winter of 1871, I travelled on horse-back over the whole of this fertile section, visiting every plantation and enjoying the temporary hospitality of elements. MEN'S AND BOYS' CLOTHING enjoying the temporary hospitality of almost every planter. On my note-book I find such names as Prinis, and Gasleigh's and Ship's, of Cunningham's prairie, the and snips, of Cunningnam's prairie, the planters on Grassmeyer prairie, at Flatonia, the Hills and Neese's and scores of others with whom I passed a day or night on this most beautiful of all prairies.

I must add however, that since my last visit the railroad from Hargisburg has made a diagonal run across the southwestern section of La Balia, and by its "civilizing innence" has of course detracted.

illzing influence" has of course detracted from the intense natural beauty of this rural paradise. I am almost prepared to agree with the landlord of the Cratchfield AT WEYMOUTH AFTER 4 O'CLOCK P. M. J. BINNEY & CO.,

agree with the landlord of the Cratchfield House, in Dallas, who declared to me when once endeavoring to induce him to invest in a railroad subsidy—a despoiler of nature, and in short an unsentimental brute, "The Railroad," he says, "takes away our natural scenery, levels our beautiful hills and mounds, destroys our picturesque forests, fills up our dainty little lakes, and drives our cattle and game beyond our Groceries and Provisions, LINCOLN SQUARE, Weymouth Landing, drives our cattle and game beyond our reach. And what does it give us in return? The scum of your northern crimconsumption, it increases our taxes, without appreciably increasing our actual valuation of real property. It forces us to dress more fashionably, to live better and beyond our means, it brings us luxuries that we could much better do without, in shortit demoralizes us. And mine host proved the value and strength of his principles, for immediately on the advent of the railroad he sold out his property at a ruinous sacrifice and moved two hundred miles towards the setting sun and away from the "great American civilizer."

But this is a digression and the road is yet before us, for quite a long stretch of bottom land is between Lagrange and our next halting place. The soil is remarkably fertile over the most of our route, for having crossed the Colorado after leaving the town, we follow the river road without leaving the stream much out of our sight for some twenty miles.—At last we reach the hill overlooking the last stretch of road, and see before us the somewhat compact collection of houses which form the town of Bastrop, the county-seat of the county of that name. We find the stream at this point too rapid for fording, and shouting across the river, we soon see coming towards us, the river we soon see coming towards us, the river from the high ugiy venicle which losses the name in this locality of ferry-boat. A rope is swung across the river from the high bluffs overlooking it, and a smaller one running through a pully-block, which in its turn runs over the cable, is connected with our flat-boat, and runs through a notched groove below the plank deck. The engineer's occupation consists in Meats and Vegetables, also Oysters, Pastry Confectionery, Fruit, &c. All orders carefully and promptly attended to, and delivered free of charge.

a notened groove below the plank deck. The engineer's occupation consists in pulling the smaller rope, which propelling the boat away from the shore by the inertia, keeps it from floating down the stream, and directs it to the other bank. A more primitive method of crossing a stream was never invented, yet it answers every purpose for it lends to a stream was never invented, yet it answers.

every purpose, for it lands us with little or no trouble on the further bank.

There is little to besaid of Bastrop. In general construction, it is the duplicate of Lagrange, though its hotel is considerably an improvement on that of the latter, and hid in the thick shrubbery, on a narrow little side street. Should we follow down the rather noisy creek which crosses the prairie some eight miles from the railroad, we should strike Cane Bayou, a muddy stream which never overflows, and find the longest cane-brake in the country. Bath Tub I bought of you I used last even fully. I found it to answer the recommendations fully. I much prefer it to any form of Bath I have ever seen. The small quantity of water necessary, and its portable form, makes it very convenient for use in any part of the house, and the bather will find it pleasanter in use. CARRIAGES CARRIAGES OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS, FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE. Top dressing at this season, with anything but the very finest and best mature, except on sod for corn, is a waste of time and labor. The effect comes too late to benefit the crop. Some active commercial fertilizer should, be used instead. For grass or wheat on hundred and fifty pounds of nitrate of sods, or the same of guano, per acrewould be a good dressing. In using commercial fertilizers, it is well to make experiments as to quantities and varieties for different soils and crops.

For the corn crop we have found the sooner the planting is done after the plowing, and while the soil is moist and iresh, the better. A top dressing of coarse-manure upon the sod would be an excellent preparation for this crop.

Many Western farmers have made flax a profitable crop, the seed being in demand at the oil mills at good prices. It is a useful crop to mellow and clean twith advantage. A bushel and a half of seed per acre may be sown this month upon a corn stubble.

"The business of the country, in every department, continues to be restricted to the narrowest limits; without a corresponding restriction of the country, in every department, continues to be restricted to the narrowest limits; without a corresponding restriction of the country, in every department, continues to be restricted to the possible. When a week old they may be taught, without difficulty, to drink milk from a shallow pan, and in doing this the young animals may be temed and rendered perfectly docile. To have and tractable animals about the farm will add much to their value, and the ease and comfort in tending them. Feed the nursing sows well, and keep them warm.

The roller should be used with judgment. It is a valuable implement, but sometimes it is used injuriously. It is most effective upon dry soils; when the soil is damp clods are easily crushed, but the surface is packed and crusted. Meadows, on the contrary, should be rolled while moist and soft, that stones and rough places may be pressed into the soil, and the surface leveled for the mower. Fall grain may be rolled with advantage the day after it is harrowed, if rain has not fallen.

He suffered, too, from an excess of saliva on his little stomach. For the purpose of temporarily pacifying him, his father, an inveterate smoker, occasionally yielded to the child's entreaties by withdrawing the cigar from his own mouth and allowing the boy to puff at it for a short while at a time, in his own way.

"Yet, in the face of all this decline, what is the real percentage of decrease in living expenses in 1873 at least 1873 at least 1873 and sold at retail almost as high as in 1873. All this must, however, right itself in time. Competition and the leasened expense of retailers themselves will accomplish the result of adjusting the cost of living to a proportionate cost of production. When this is reached, an important step toward a healthier condition of things will have been attained."

Respecting the future there does not that the new found substitute for the maternal fount invariably gave entire satisfaction—the stomach complaint disappeared, the child acquired an appetite for food and begun to thrive. But the appetite for smoking increased even more rapidly. From a few little imitative puffs at beginning, the child grew into smoking a whole cigar a day, and increased the number until in a year or so he consumed from ten to twelve cigars daily. It was noticed then that he suffered in health, suffered nervously and lost flesh, and that mentally he had little of the healthy curiosity or fresh interest in the little things around him characteristic of children of his age.

Respecting the future there does not appear much in the present outlook to encourage the hope of immediate revival of business. The circular from which we have quoted (and which is prepared with the usual care and ability), concludes as follows:

"The spring trade generally has been very disappointing both in extent and profit, and the backwardness of the season retards a demand for goods which it was thought might follow the regular season's purchases. There is a been touched, and that with the permanent opening of navigation and the necessary activities of the centental year, a new start will be made which, though not accomplishing great results within a shert time, will yet be hopeful in indications for the future."

Three Points for Consideration

During the past five years the VEGETINE has been steadily working itself into public favor, and those who were at first most incredulous in regard to its merit are now its most ardent friends and supporters.

There are three essential causes for those having such a horror of patent medicines, chanking their opinion and lending their influence toward the advancement of VEGETINE. Ist. It is an honestly-prepared medicine from barks, roots and herbs. 2d. It honestly accomplishes all that is claimed for it, without leaving any bad effects in the system. 3d. It presents honest vouchers in testimonials from honest, well-known citizens, whose signatures are a sufficient guarantee of their earnestness in the matter. Taking into considerable before the public through the flaming advertisements in the newspaper columns, with no proof of merit or gennine vouchers of what it has done, we should be pardoned for manifesting a small degree of pride in presenting the following testimonial from Rev. J. S. DICKERSON, D. D., the popular and ever gennia postor of the South Baptetic thurch. Boston.

Mrssrs. SETH W. FOWLE & SONS:

KAST STONEHAM, Oxford County, Me.,

Gentlemen-I feel it my duty to write a few words in favor of DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD

CHERRY. In the early part of last winter I took a erere cold, and shortly afterwards a distressing cough as added to it. My friends did everything they could for me, but without avail. The best physicians that ontinued with me all through the winter with increasing severity. I spit blood three or four times a day, and my friends considering my case hopeless, gave me up as a confirmed Consumptive. I was in this condit ion when heard of DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD

CHERRY. I began its use, and before I had taken half a bottle of it my cough and all my other troubles left me, and I was cured. I feel so truly indebted to this great remedy for what it has done for me that I send you this voluntary testimony, hoping it may be the
